This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

First species as described in paragraphs 0035-0044 of the substitute specification of 12 April 2005 (using three equations in paragraph 0042 to estimate air outlet temperature and then compare to the measured air outlet temperature as disclosed in paragraph 0044) and

Second species as described beginning at paragraph 0045 (the "energy balance" method where no direct air outlet temperature is available)

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Claim 1 appears to be generic.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons:

As understood from the search report dated 06.02.04 it appears that claim 1 is anticipated by at least EP 0 470 676 A2 (not yet translated). If applicant would provide a translation of this document in response to this action or explain how the current claim 1 defines over it the examiner will be in a position to comment further. Moreover, it also appears that the claims were also rejected in the international preliminary examination report of 08 Feb 2005, incorporated here by reference by way of explanation of why the novelty and non-obviousness may be found in some technical feature that is not common to both species based on the "D1" reference of that document.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.
